Announcement: Transition to the Centre-Based Online Examination format from November 2026

The Institute is pleased to announce that, commencing with the November 2026 Actuarial Examinations, all examinations will be conducted in a Centre-Based Online (CBT) format.

Under this examination mode, candidates will be required to appear for their examinations at designated examination centres using computer systems provided at the designated examination centres. Examinations cannot be taken from home or any other remote location.

The Centre-Based Online format has been introduced to enhance the overall examination experience by ensuring:

- A secure and standardised examination environment.
- Improved examination integrity and confidentiality.
- Uniform infrastructure and technical support across all examination centres.
- Efficient examination administration and an enhanced candidate experience.

Candidates are advised to note the following:

- Examinations will be conducted only at examination centres designated by the Institute.
- Candidates will be able to select their preferred examination centre during the examination registration process.
- Detailed information regarding examination centres, the examination timetable, reporting time, examination-day guidelines, permitted items, and other relevant instructions will be communicated in due course.
- Candidates are advised to regularly visit the Institute's official website for important announcements and updates.

The Institute is committed to ensuring a smooth transition to the Centre-Based Online examination format and will provide comprehensive guidance to support candidates throughout the process.

We wish all candidates the very best for the November 2026 Actuarial Examinations.
